Project Title: A Child Called "It"

About 10%<sup>1</sup> of children have experienced mistreatment by a family member, been injured in an assault, or seen a family member assault another family member. This can affect their social skills as a child, but how does this affect them as adults?

Our project is important because some people have this predicament. We hope to find how much of an impact this actually has on adults.

What we plan to do is as follows; do research on the topic so that we can make an accurate model, talk to counselors and/or psychologists to learn more about the topic, and make an accurate model using our data.
